freight was shipped on a verbal contract nd no bill of lading was given, but presented bill of lading not signed, and which con-ained a clause that the exceptions to the bill of lading were not binding upon the shipper unless he signed it, and he never signed it. The defendants claimed to have delivered another bill of lading to the plain-iff for his goods, and that two trunks that he put on the boat as baggage contained mer-chandise. And it was also claimed that the boat was burned and the goods lost by the negligence of the defendants. The jury tound that the defendants were guilty of no neg-ligence, and that the goods were shipped under the regular bill of lading of the steam-boat, which excepted loss by fire, and gave a clean verdict for the defendants, thus ending all the litigation against the steamboat and owners. This is the fourth and last case brought in Louisville, Kentucky, on account of that fire. The trial occupied six days, Mr. Charles H. Stephens, of the firm of
